This applies to those faculty members teaching fully online courses (prior to the transition). Since their courses were already fully developed and syllabi, assignments and assessments/ learning outcomes were already determined, they may continue to complete their course by 5/4 because no additional work or preparations were necessary.*

However, if they indeed choose to extend their assignments to 5/18 and to provide students extra opportunity for completion because of student needs and circumstances, they have the time to do so. The hybrid and face-to-face faculty have until 5/18 so they have additional time for conversion to meet course objectives and learning outcomes. Faculty can address and mitigate their own concern by being clear with their students about the option and communicating regularly about expectations and due dates.
